

I

i (particle of the cohortative)

OB lit. i tušūlil šarrašu i tahhiš Westenholz 1997, 196: 30 “may she hail its king, may she prosper” (cf. alālu III Š). For i before 3fs. s. also Kouwenberg, LANE 2, 213 and n8.

ibbaru s. imbaru.

ibilu, ibalu, +ebalu “camel”

1. Lex. [MIN (= ANŠE)-]A-AB-BA! =! e!-ba-lu Emar 6/4, 550: 234 (Hh XIII).
2. Instead of i-be/bi-li OIP 2, 130 vi 66f. (CAD I 2, AHw 363), read with RINAP 3/1, 185: 66f. a-ga-li-i til-li in both exemplars of the text. Hence ibilu is syllabically attested only in lex. texts. Elsewhere, the logogram ANŠE.A.AB.BA is prob. to be read gammalu (court. Martin Heide).

ibrū “friend”

OB lit. i-bi-ir talīmiya ZA 110, 48 viii 14 “my close friend”. The gen. construction is notable.

iddanna s. danna.

idrānu “potash, salt”

OB lit. kīma eqel id-ra-ni-im [a]ḥaddū kalāma CUSAS 10, 10: 28f. “like about a field of salt, can I be happy (about you) at all?”

idu “arm”

OB lit. PN ^m*Ma-[an-nul]-(um-)ú-tar-is-sú* ZA 110, 41 ii 6, 18 “Who can beat off his arm?”. An analysis as Mannum-utarrissu < utarriş-šu (Foster/George 2020, 38) is neither favored by the broken spelling nor by the short form Mannu-ú-tar (ii 37, 53 etc.).

igirū “heron”

OB i-gi-ru-um^{mušen} Edubba'a 7, 100: 11 (list of birds). The section also contains the waterfowl arabū l. 13.

igū II “prince”; + OB

OB lit. i-ga!-at iltum VS 10, 214 vii 20 “the goddess is the princess”, s. disc. Streck 2010, 568.

iħzētu pl. tant. “decorative inlay, studding”

Delete EA 22 iv 14 and EA 25 iv 50 cit. CAD I 46, AHw 367 (correct reading GÙN+A = burrumu, s. burrumu).

NR

ikkillu “rumor, clamor”

NA ^r*ki¹-il¹-lu¹ ittaška[n]* SAA 19, 26: 10 “a clamor was raised”.

+ īlānu “stag, deer”; NWSem. lw.

MB dàra-maš = ayyalu : i-la-nu Emar 551: 51 (Hh XIV 148; MSL 8/2, 18). The gloss marks the word as foreign, s. Pentiuc 2001, 83; Kogan 2005, 38.

ilBu “a garment”; OB Mari

OB il-Bu-um (T.81 i 12), gúil-Bu (M.18222 ii' 18'), túgil/il-Bu(-um) (T.525: 4; T.263: 11 et al., s. Durand 2009, 47f.). In T.518 and T.519 ilBu corresponds to Sumerian TÚG^{há} and therefore denotes simply “cloth” or “garment” (Durand 2009, 48). Durand 2009 considers the root of ilBu as /hlb/p and connects it with Arabic haliba “he had much hair; was very hairy” and 'ahlab “having much hair; very hairy” (Lane 2003/8, 2897f.). Hence his translation of ilBu as “tissu à poils longs(?)” (Durand 2009, 48; 599).

NR

illātu, ellī'ātu, pl. tant. “saliva”; + OB

OB e-el-li-a-at kalbim ZA 75, 198: 9 “saliva of a dog”. The ref. shows that SB il-la-(a)-tu etc. is a contracted form illātu (s. already CAD) rather than illātu.

illiliš “like Enlil”

OB lit. il-li-li-iš Westenholz 1997, 196: 42 (in difficult context).

illūru “a flower”

1. MB lit. il-lu-ru-um nasqum ša šadišu ALL no. 11: 13 “chosen i.-flower of its mountain”.
2. SB il-lu-ur šeri KAL 3, 75 iii 11!, s. wasāmu.

ilu “god”

OB lit. pānīka-āmur i-la-at CUSAS 10, 9: 17f. “I looked at your face: you are a god” (stative).

imbaru, ibbaru “fog”

OB lit. īhuz ib-ba-ru-um īn šamši CUSAS 32, 94: 26 “a fog seized the eye of the sun”.

JW

+ inṣabu “earring”, cf. a/inṣabtu

OA in-ṣa-bu uznīni PRAK 1 B 472 i 9 “the earrings of our ears”. Mostly fem. a/inṣabtu. In the light of this ref. also an-ṣa-ab BAP 7: 165 (OB), corr. in CAD A/2, 144 anṣabtu c to an-ṣa-ab-<tum>, might be masc.

inšiš (mng. uncert.)

AHw. 1563 “unkl.”. Cf. Westenholz 1997, 235: = enšiš “weakly” or eššiš “anew”? But enšu is never wr. with in-, and the nasalization of /šš/ would be unexpected (but not entirely impossible) in OB. Jacobsen 1987, 5 n. 25: from ḤNT “to violate an oath”, but this would be hapax in Akk.

inzarû “an aromatic plant”; + LB

1. LB ½ GÍN in-za-ru-ú FS W. G. Lambert 149f., 1: 9.
